Identity Jun 07 2020 There are situations in which we fail for a moment to recognize the person we are with, in which the identity of the other is erased while we simultaneously doubt our own. This also happens with couples--indeed, with couples, because lovers fear more than anything else "losing sight" of the loved one. With stunning artfulness in language and playing variations on the meaningful moment, Milan Kundera has made this situation--and the vague sense of loss it inspires--the very fabric of his new novel. Here brevity goes hand in hand with intensity, and a moment of bewilderment marks the start of a labyrinthine journey during which the reader repeatedly crosses the border between the real and the unreal, between what occurs in the world outside and what the mind creates in its solitude. Of all contemporary novelists, Kundera can transform such a hidden and disconcerting perception into the material for a novel, one of his finest. It is painful, and most enlightening. Which, surprisingly, turns out to be a love story.
