American Automobile Advertising, 1930-1980 2019 This book provides a comprehensive history of American print automobile advertising over a half-century starting beginning with the entrenchment of the "Big Three" automakers during the Depression and concluding with the fuel crises of the 1970s and early 1980s. Advanced advertising layouts and graphics are discussed in Part One, together with the ways in which styling, mechanical improvements, and convenience features were featured. Part Two explores ads that were concerned less with the attributes of the cars themselves than with shaping the way consumers would perceive and identify them. Part Three addresses ads oriented toward the practical aspects of automobile ownership, concluding with an account of how advertising responded to the advances in technology after World War II. Illustrations include more than 250 automobile advertisements, the majority of which have not been seen in print since their original publication.

American Cars, 1973-1980 28 2022 The 1973 oil crisis forced the American automotive industry into a period of dramatic change, marked by stiff foreign competition, tougher product regulations and suddenly altered consumer demand. With gas prices soaring and the economy in a veritable tailspin, muscle cars and the massive "speed" engines of the late '60s were out, and fuel efficient compacts were in. By 1980, American manufacturers were churning out some of the most feature-laden and most fuel efficient cars they had ever built. This exhaustive reference work details every model from each of the major American manufacturers from model through 1980, including various "captive imports" (e.g. Dodge's Colt, built by Mitsubishi.) Within each model year, it reports on each manufacturer's significant new details every model offered: its specifications, powertrain offerings, prices, standard features, major options, and production figures, among other facts. The work is illustrated with approximately 1,300 photographs.
